INT 302 – Professionalism Portfolio  (NCATE Assessment 8, ACTFL Standard 6)
You will complete four tasks dealing with various facets of professionalism and submit the tasks as a portfolio.
The completed portfolio will be uploaded to Taskstream as Assessment 8 – Professionalism.

Formatting Guidelines for All Tasks:

1. Use Times New Roman, Book Antigua or New Century Schoolbook fonts, in 12 point. Double space, except for the article citation at the beginning of Task 1, which you should single space.
Use appropriate italic font for journal title.  Use 1” top margin; .75” margins at the bottom and at each side.

2. Use full-justification for the body of your summary.

3. Put your full name in a header at the left margin. Put the task # in the header at the right margin.
No footer or pagination is necessary.

4. Submit a hard copy of each task on the due date in the syllabus. In addition, upload all four tasks to Taskstream under Assessment 8 - Professionalism Task #1 - Read and reflect upon the significance of an article from a juried professional journal.

Procedure:

1. Select an article from the list of suggested articles. You may suggest another article of interest, provided that it comes from a juried professional journal and that you get pre-approval from the instructor. The references list of the suggested articles may be interesting as long as they are within the past ten-year time frame.

2. Write a three-page reflection paper addressing the following points:
   a. Start your summary with the APA citation for the article. Single-spaced. Double-space the rest of the summary.
   a. Briefly summarize the content and findings of the article.
   b. Explain the relevance of these findings to the classroom practitioner in shaping classroom practice. In other words, what classroom practices could be implemented or continued that would support the findings of the research. Conversely, what common classroom practices would not be supported by the research and should be discontinued.
   c. Conclude your summary with a personal reaction to these finding. (Were these findings surprising or eye-opening? Counterintuitive? Common sense? Reaffirming of prior beliefs?)

Suggestions:

1. Carefully read the evaluation rubric which describes target characteristics of professional writing.

2. In professional writing, you can state a personal opinion without using the first-person. Avoid using expressions like, “I feel...” or “I think....” or “In my opinion...” Instead, use the research or the findings as the subject of the sentences.

3. Cite evidence from the article to support assertions.
4. Use APA internal citation formatting for citing quotations from the article.

5. The key to high marks on this assignment is not just regurgitating back the findings of the study, but rather, in interpreting those findings through the lens of your own experiences and observations to demonstrate that you are developing the ability to apply research findings to your own professional practice.

Task 2 - Subscribe to FLTEACH Listserv throughout the semester. Write a three-page summary and reflection about one recent robust thread.

Task 3 - Attend a professional foreign language meeting or conference and submit a two-page written summary and reflection of the experience.

Task 4 - This assignment is intended to help you develop skills as an advocate for language education, to build your awareness of the range of circumstances that are served by your proactive and reactive advocacy, and to give you tools and resources for carrying out well-informed and effective advocacy efforts.

Process:

1. Analyze the Scenario: Analyze your given scenario to identify the issue(s), the audience(s) with whom you need to communicate, and the purpose(s) of your advocacy. Then determine the best advocacy approach for effectively addressing the issues(s) and the audience(s).

2. Consult Authoritative Sources: Consult a minimum of three authoritative sources that can inform your advocacy response to the given scenario. One of these must be from a modern language professional organization (i.e., website content, journal article, etc.)

3. Develop Advocacy Response: Develop an original, useable, and reproducible resource that could be used to respond effectively to the given scenario, taking into account what you learned from the authoritative sources you consulted. Your advocacy response may be a letter, a brochure, a booklet, a PowerPoint Presentation, a video, a lesson, an activity, a project, a speech, an infographic or any other product that would be appropriate for addressing the issue(s) and audience(s) effectively. Consider the needs of the audience to whom your response is directed!

4. Prepare a Rationale: In addition, include a rationale no longer than three pages that (a) states the scenario, (b) explains what the issue(s) are (identify conflicting viewpoints or problem that needs solving), (c) identifies the target audience(s) for your advocacy response, and (d) rationale for your response (proposed solution to conflict or problem). Also include a list of sources you consulted, written APA style.
Scenarios

1. Your school district is considering the elimination of [language], the language you teach.

2. Several of your level 3 [language] students have informed you that they do not plan to study the language you teach after completing their three-year requirement.

3. Several parents in your district have approached you to ask your help in promoting the establishment of a FLES program in the district.

4. Your beginning [language] students regularly question why they need to learn a language other than English.

5. The school where you teach is planning to hold a Career Day.

6. The New York State Board of Regents is reviewing its mandates across all curricular areas.

7. Several parents have communicated with you to make you aware that they do not believe their child should have to study a language other than English.

8. The Board of Education has called into question whether they should permit school-sponsored trips to target language countries.

9. You have discovered that some of the guidance counselors in your building are discouraging students from continuing the study of a language other than English beyond the required number of courses.

10. Students with Individualized Education Plans (IEPs) in your school are routinely excluded from studying a language other than English.

* Task 4 is taken from the original work of Dr. Joanne O'Toole from SUNY Oswego.
